THE STRIKE IN ALBANY.

POLICE SAY THEY ARE POWERLESS TO HANDLE CROWDS.

General Oliver Issues Order Assembling Tenth Battalion of Albany—Soldiers Hurried to the Scene.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Albany, N. Y., May 15.—A special train of thirteen cars bearing the Twenty-Third regiment came to a sudden halt at the railroad bridge near the Albany depot this morning. The engine had jumped the track. Colonel Barnes of Fort Smith ordered four hundred soldiers to leave the train and form on the bridge, march into the city. The order to mobilize reached Brooklyn at one o'clock last night and by four this morning the entire regiment was aboard the train for Albany. It is believed that their presence will have a salutary effect on the striking trolleymen. Women taunt the soldiers with being paid assassins and daring them to shoot.

Albany, N. Y., May 14.—When darkness fell this evening several thousand weary street car strikers and sympathizers went to their houses, but they were replaced by as many more who took up the vigil to prevent the United Traction men from running their electric cars with non-union men. The darkness brought some confidence that there would be no attempt before morning to move care for two attempts made in broad day light and brought bloodshed and riot on such a scale that the local police assisted by a score of deputies and Pinkerton men, had been unable to quell the disturbance. One man lies in a hospital seriously wounded, one of the two cars the company attempted to run in is in the grip of a street near the car house and the trolley wires are cut in several places, practically crippling the road. Near the car house are men, women, and children wrought up to a pitch of frenzy that bodes ill if the doors of the car house open to let out another car. Early this morning there were about 150 of the new men, but by nightfall 65 had deserted and joined the ranks of the strikers. The men claim that they were brought here under a misapprehension and that they supposed they were going to Philadelphia.

This afternoon the police practically admitted that they were powerless to take care of the large crowds on the street if cars were run, and General manager McNamara called upon General Oliver, in command of the third brigade for protection. He said: "We intend to run out cars if it takes the entire National Guard of New York State to protect us."

General Oliver issued an order assembling at their armory tonight the Tenth Battalion of Albany, comprising four companies of the National Guard of infantry and the Third Signal Corps, mounted. General Oliver said that he would warn the remainder of the Third Brigade to be ready for a call. The riot today was full of exciting features.

At 10 o'clock two of the big car doors swung open and out came a car with all windows opened. Immediately there was a roar of hisses and shouts. Several men made an effort to board the car, but they were kept from doing so by policemen, one of whom was stationed on each car step. The car made rapid headway and almost before the expectant crowd realized what had happened it was well on its way over Quail street. It continued to the unit station and returned, following most of the way by bicyclists and people in vehicles. The second car did not escape. When the doors were opened the mob surged towards it despite the efforts of the police. The crew consisted of four men, dressed in plain clothes. As the car swung around the curve there was a rush for it, but the crowd was driven back. The committee from the strikers was allowed to approach the men. "Do you want to come with us boys? You won't regret it."

LINEMAN HAS CLOSE CALL.

Almost Dragged from Roof of Four Story Building.

Washington Post.

Harvey J. Wright, aged thirty years, a lineman, had a terrible experience yesterday afternoon about four o'clock while working on the roof of Haines' department store, Eighth and D streets southeast. He suffered severely and lost three fingers in a most extraordinary accident, one not likely to occur again in 100 years.

Wright went to the roof of the four-story building to repair some telephone wires and to put in one new connection. He had on his spurs and gloves and was fully equipped for any emergency that an electrical worker might have to encounter. He went at his work in good humor, and to facilitate the job in hand seated himself on the roof edge, his legs dangling down over space.

Under his arm was a coil of wire, and he loosened it out to connect it up. One end he held in his right hand, in readiness to cut it off at the right length, while the other dropped down upon the street. From his position he could not judge distance very well, and paying out too much wire, the bight fell fell across the street car tracks.

An eastbound street car came along, and the wheels caught the wire. Wright felt it tightening on his hand and realized instantly what had happened. He attempted to release his hold on the wire and at the same time reached back with his free hand and seized the cornice.

This saved him from being drawn from the roof to instant death on the ravement below, but the next instant he found that a turn of the wire was about his wrist. It slipped down far enough to spare his hand, but tightened about and cut through his index finger at the middle joint and mutilated the second and third fingers so badly that he will lose them. His life was spared at the cost of a mutilated hand.

Weak from the loss of blood, the lineman was taken from the roof by Officer Edwards, of the Fifth precinct, and hurried to Providence Hospital, where it was said the two injured fingers will probably have to be amputated.

A number of pedestrians witnessed the entangling of the wire in the car wheels, and followed the slender metallic wire up with their eyes, saw the lineman's plight and his struggle, as the wire tightened, to avoid being drawn over the edge of the roof. Many expected to see him fall, and a general sigh of relief followed the relaxation of the wire as the car passed and Wright maintained his position. It was seen that he was hurt, however, and several people in the crowd hurried to Policeman Edwards with word of the singular accident.

WANT THE LIBERTY BELL.

Charleston Exposition Officials Anxious for the Sacred Relic

Philadelphia Record.

Mayor Ashbridge yesterday received from President T. M. Wagener, of the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian Exposition Company an eloquent appeal to have the old liberty bell made the central feature of the exhibit in the Philadelphia Building. President Wagener expresses the gratification of his fellow-managers at the interest being taken by Philadelphians in the big enterprise and writes:

"I write in behalf of the Exposition Company to make the special request that among the exhibits of historic interest that your city will make at Charleston there shall be included the old Liberty Bell, which proclaimed liberty to the people of this country a century and a quarter ago. In the first struggle for American independence the people of South Carolina and Pennsylvania and of Philadelphia and Charleston worked together, marched together and fought together and in this present day there should exist between them the closest possible alliance in industrial and commercial enterprise.

"No contribution that Philadelphia could make to the success of the Exposition at Charleston would excite more patriotic enthusiasm than the sacred relic which you cherish so carefully. We shall be pleased to provide all possible protection for the Liberty Bell, and trust you may find it consistent with your sense of public duty and responsibility to make this contribution to the success of the undertaking, which means so much for us and all the people of the South."

The Triumph of Labor.

Jacksonville Times-Union.

On Sunday stupor yet possessed us, and we hysterically smiled at our fortunes. On Monday groups gathered about the streets and spoke confident words, but hands were idle, and laments for the lost were heard continuously. On Wednesday Bay street was again thunderous with the pounding wagons and the thumping hoofs. At every station men begged for leave to work at whatever was needed, so that care was necessary lest strength became over-taxed to the filling of the hospitals. Thursday remarkable progress was made. Now the ruins are full of workers, temporary shelters are going up on every side, and the community is working together as an army drills. It is a most inspiring sight to watch the obliterating of all rivalry save in service—the utter destruction secured for that altar of Mammon whereupon Americans have been accused of preferring to pour the libation of their worship.

Now the first among us and the highest in honor are but the chiefest of servants to the community. Those who will not follow the example and labor at what their hands find to do may be well dropped from the lists as worthless forever. Those who were richest but a few weeks ago have now scarcely the clothes we then thought essential to decency. The laughter that follows the discovery of another queerly fitting suit is akin to admiration of the spirit in which it is worn, but also close unto tears.

It is the triumph of labor, it is the apotheosis of brotherhood, and the philosopher may here be given a lesson that should teach him wisdom all his life long. Let us hear no more bitter axioms. Humanity is good, and 'love is what it seems to the poet—always and forever the sweetest thing under heaven.

The Negro—A Fixed Quantity.

Birmingham, Ala., News.

No more potent factor in the development of the South exists today than the negro. He is one of the natural resources, which the North, East and West are as thoroughly without now as when in anti-bellum times they made the Southern planters a prince of lordly domain. Adapted to the soil and climate, the negro flourishes in the South. Childlike, thoughtless but contented, without malice, strong of arm and capable of enduring the heat of a long summer, he is an agricultural entity that will not be replaced by any other quantity for generations to come.

The negro is a fixed and a staple quantity of Southern progress just as much as its cotton, its iron ore or its coal. He was a source of wealth before the war and is becoming a source of wealth again under the able guidance of such men as Booker Washington. He is rapidly losing his fetich worship of a sole political party and is beginning to pay little attention to partisan politics. The negro is really doing very well, and he and the Southern people will continue to maintain the amicable relations which have existed from the beginning. The negro does the chores and the white man of the South pays him fair wages. This fundamental relationship cannot be disturbed by "Uncle Tom's Cabins" of the past, present or future, and should not be.

The Great Change.

Indianapolis News.

The simple fact is that this country today, with its opportunities and ideals, is almost as different from what it was when Bryan first made his appeal for the Presidency as it is from the country that existed before the civil war. We have world ideas, where before we had merely sectional ideas. Our manufacturers are talking of the markets of India as they used to talk of the markets of Indiana. We see no limit to the expansive power of American enterprise, and we face it with the full flush of confidence. A revolution is taking place in the South as a result of these things. Losing somewhat the traditional fear of race domination, the South is facing the future it never did before.

There is no marriage in heaven; this is how the place keeps up its reputation.

What S. S. S. Does for Children

Children are constantly exposed to all sorts of diseases. The air they breathe is filled with germs, sewer gas and dust from the filthy streets are inhaled into the lungs and taken into the blood. At the crowded school rooms and other public places they come in contact almost daily with others recovering from or in the first stages of contagious diseases. You can't quarantine against the balance of the world, and the best you can do is to keep their blood in good condition, and thus prevent or at least mitigate the disease. You have perhaps learned from observation or experience that healthy, robust children (and this means, of course, children whose blood is pure) are not nearly so liable to contract diseases peculiar to them, and when they do it is generally in a mild form. On the other hand, weak, emaciated and sickly ones seem to catch every disease that comes along. This is because their blood is lacking in all the elements necessary to sustain and build up the body. Poisons of every description accumulate in the system, because the polluted and sluggish blood is unable to perform its proper functions.

Such children need a blood purifier and tonic to give strength and vitality to their blood, and S. S. S. being a purely vegetable remedy, makes it the safest and best for the delicate constitutions of children. S. S. S. is not only a perfect blood medicine, but is pre-eminently the tonic for children; it increases their appetites and strengthens the digestion and assimilation of food. If your children have any hereditary or acquired taint in their blood, give them S. S. S. and write to our physicians for any information or advice wanted; this will cost you nothing, and will start the little weaklings on the road to recovery. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

A CATHOLIC JUBILEE.

Closing of the Century Celebration in Old Rome.

Elaborate and Impressive Ceremonial Known as the Closing of the Holy Door and Its Significance.

Many ceremonials took place in Rome in connection with the close of the nineteenth century, but none was either more interesting or imposing than that incidental to the closing of the holy door at St. Peter's cathedral. The last year of the century is jubilee year in the Catholic church, as all Catholics and many Protestants are aware. Therefore 1900 was marked by many ceremonies in connection with the period. The opening of the holy door took place over a year ago, and the ceremonial of closing was observed last Christmas eve. Owing to the delicate state of the present pope's health the building in which the opening and closing ceremonies took place had been heated to the temperature of Leo XIII's private apartments to avoid any possibility of his holiness taking a chill, says a London paper.

The ceremony of opening the holy door is declared to be symbolical of the fact that the church is open to all men so long as they go there after a thorough and sincere conversion. When the pope opens the door the three knobs which he gives to it represent the three continents—Europe, Africa and Asia—to which the pope offers the treasures which he is the medium for dispensing. The three strokes also are looked upon as symbolizing the joy that the jubilee causes to the faithful of heaven, earth and purgatory. The pope, who is seated on a raised throne in front of the large door in the middle of the grand portico, remains stationary for a brief while, until the prince of the throne presents a golden hammer to his holiness, which the latter takes in his right hand, and, rising from his throne, goes and knocks at the holy door. His clergy follow him, each with a candle in his hand. His holiness, after knocking three times at the door, says in Latin: "Open to me these doors of justice!" Then the choir adds: "This is the door of the Eternal One, and the just will enter in," etc. After this the master masons knock down the wall which encloses the holy door, the wall being so lightly put together, however, that its four sides are held together but slightly, the stones of which it is composed not being cemented. Thus, no sooner has the pope knocked at the holy door than it falls without any resistance. The debris of the wall is distributed among the worshippers, who hasten to gather it in order to put it among their precious reliques.

While this is taking place the pope reseats himself on the throne, but after the demolition is completed the penitentiaries of St. Peter take their brooms, clean the floor, remove the pieces of brick and mortar from the passage—which are not looked upon as material to be held in high esteem, since reliques are made of them—and wash the moldings and all round the door with holy water. This work being finished his holiness once more descends from his throne, singing the anthem which opens with the words: "Haec dies quam fecit Dominus," etc., which the choir continues to sing after him. Arriving at the holy door the pope recites some prayers, takes the cross, kneels before the door, intones the Te Deum, and, rising again while singing, passes through the holy door, his clergy following him. Everybody who can goes into St. Peter's to witness this superb ceremony or to take part in the vespers at the papal chapel. After the vespers the cardinals take off their robes and put on their red capes, accompany the pope to the door of his private apartments and then retire. After the morning mass on Christmas day his holiness goes to the lodge of the beneficent, where he blesses the faithful in the form which is only used on the occasion of the jubilee.

The closing of the door is a very similar ceremony to the opening. The greatest solemnity is observed, and thousands of privileged pilgrims flock to the cathedral to be witnesses of what, except in rare instances, occurs but once in a lifetime. His holiness lays the first brick for the closing of the door, all the cardinals, monsignors and other dignitaries in Rome being witnesses of the operation. The bricks used for this purpose are about double the ordinary size, being covered with a thin layer of plate—in some cases of silver and in others of gold. They bear in relief the papal arms and the inscription: "Leo XIII. Pont. Max. Aperuit et clausit."

According to an English consular report oil engines are rapidly advancing in favor in Palestine for the purpose of drawing water from the deep wells to irrigate the orange gardens. Hitherto the water was pumped by animal power. There was a large water wheel and from four to eight mules were required to revolve it, according to the size of the wheel.

THE BEST REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM. QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parson & Co., druggists of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommend it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." or sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised me to try Electric Bitters, and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cts., guaranteed at C. E. Holton's drug store.

A TESTIMONIAL FROM OLD ENGLAND.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mrs. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years being most of the time confined to her bed. She is now quite well." Sold by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

CAUGHT A DREADFUL COLD.

Marion Cooke, manager for T. M. Thompson, a large importer of fine millinery at 1658 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, says: "During the late severe weather I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once. I am now entirely well and feel very pleased.

How a Woman Suffers.

HOWELL, IND., Nov. 26. I will always praise Wine of Cardui. It has done more good than any medicine I have ever taken in my life. Please send a book about female diseases to the ladies whose names I enclose.

Mrs. MINNIE STODGHILL.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It isn't necessary for a woman to give particulars. When she says she has "female troubles", other women know what that means. It means days and nights of endless suffering. It means headaches which no tongue can describe. It means that terrible bearing and dragging down in the lower abdomen. It means agonizing backache, and shoulder ache, and arm ache, and aches in the lower limbs. It means nerves on edge—the blues—despondency and loss of hope. It means debilitating drains that the doctors call leucorrhœa. It means martyrdom—sometimes even death seems preferable.

GRAND CHAPTERS NEW OFFICERS

ELECTED AT THE SESSION HELD THIS MORNING.

No Public Sessions Have Been Held—The Masons This Afternoon Visit the Races—The Parade To-morrow Afternoon. The Masons now in session in this city have full possession of the town. So far none of their meetings have been public. At the session of the Grand Chapter this morning the officers for the following ensuing year were elected. Tomorrow afternoon the Knights Templar will give a spectacular parade, marching to the State Normal College, where they will be given an entertainment by the young ladies of that institution. The parade is said to be a fine one, and well worth the assembling of the citizens to witness it. HIGH POINT COMMENCEMENT.

REV. S. B. TURRENTINE'S SERMON A VERY FINE SERMON.

Annual Debate of Irving Literary So- ciety—Graduating Class Plants Tree. Correspondence of The Telegram.

High Point, May 14.—The Commence- ment exercises of the Graded school began here Sunday morning in the Methodist church with a sermon by Rev. S. B. Turrentine, of Greensboro.

The church was full to overflowing when the speaker began. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion. On the front seat sat the class of the school. The choir rendered beautiful selections throughout the exercises, the first selection being No.

580, "Stand Up For Jesus." Mr. Turrentine read portions of the 31st Chapter of Proverbs and the second chapter of

First Epistle to St. John, after which he took as his text the 7th and 8th verses of the First Chapter of Joshua. He began in an unusually interesting way and in the one hour and a half that he spoke the eyes of the audience were riveted upon the speaker.

His sermon was far above the average. I am safe in saying that it was one of the best ever delivered in these parts and the audience was very appreciative.

At night Mr. Turrentine occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church, preaching another excellent sermon.

Last night the Annual Debate of the Irving Literary Society was held at the Graded School building. The query was, "Resolved, That the Signs of the Time do not Indicate a long Life for

Our Republic." The negative side won. The exercises were interspersed with interesting declamations and beautiful selections of songs.

This morning at ten o'clock a tree planting by the class took place on the Graded School grounds. This is an annual exercise and is interesting and profitable.

At eleven o'clock class day exercises began in the M. E. church, opened by a quartette, "Down the River of Life,"

by Messrs. Ed Tate, Walter Chandler,

Misses Minnie Snow, and Lula Tate.

The other part of the program is as follows:</

WAYS OF TWO CHIEFTAINS.

Roberts and Kitchener, Heads of the British Army, Contrasted by a War Photographer.

A photographer who went to the front on behalf of the leading illustrated journals and has just returned related an anecdote the other day which very aptly illustrates the different characters and methods of those two great English generals, Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, says the London Free Lance. He (the photographer) was provided by his employer with a special tarpaulin-covered cart and a couple of mules for the transport of his apparatus, and, needless to say, the name and style of his paper was writ large all over it. During those fierce days at Paardeberg preceding the surrender of Cronje there was a big run on the ambulance wagons, of which, owing to the rapid British advance, there were none too many. Proceeding cautiously one day with his cart and mules to a spot favorable to snapshotting a few pictures, the artist was suddenly confronted by an orderly who signed him to stop and spoke as follows: "Lord Roberts presents his compliments and would be glad of the immediate loan of your cart for a couple of hours to convey a wounded trooper to the rear."

Of course there was only one possible answer to such a request. The photographer hastily climbed down and evinced in the rapidity with which he undid his tackle how much real pleasure it gave him to comply. But that was not all. At the expiration of the two hours the orderly again galloped up and said: "Lord Roberts presents his compliments and would be glad if you would extend the loan of your cart for a further two hours." Absolutely flushing with pleasure, the artist could do nothing but blurt out his readiness to lend his cart to so courteous a commander for just as long as he should be pleased to retain it. Promptly at the expiration of the time named, however, the cart and mules were brought safely back, along with an expression of thanks from the commander in chief for the assistance rendered him.

But now mark the difference in the case of "the man of iron." The very next day a precisely similar emergency arose. This time, however, Lord Kitchener himself rode up, accompanied by a troop of lancers. Acting evidently upon orders just given, two of the troopers sprang from their saddles, one of them seized and held the mules and the other proceeded with the utmost dispatch and without so much as a look at the astonished artist to undo the fastenings at the back of the cart and unload the tackle. "What is it, my lord?" gasped the photographer, helplessly, from the box seat. "Quick, man, get down and lend a hand. Sorry, but we must commandeer you for ambulance," was the reply he received. And before he could quite realize the situation the two mules had been "outspanned," his traps strewed about the ground and his cart attached to two mounted troopers and was thundering over the field. As to when, where or how it would be returned to him was left entirely to his imagination, as Kitchener and his staff immediately galloped away without vouchsafing a word.

His Character.

The old hiring fairs are still in some rural districts of England. There is a story of an old Gloucestershire farmer who, seeing a likely lad at such a place, opened negotiations with a view to engaging him. "Hast got a character from thy last place?" the farmer asked. "No," replied the boy; "but my old gaffer be about somewhere, and I can get him to write one." "Very well," was the reply. "Thee get it and meet I here again at four o'clock." The farmer and the boy met at the appointed hour. "Hast got thy character?" was the query. The answer was short and sharp: "No, but I ha' got thine, and I bean't a-comin'" — Youth's Companion.

"Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. I quickly secured a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure, giving her three doses. The croup was mastered and our little darling speedily recovered," so writes A. L. Spafford, Chster, Mich.

NAME FOR KODOL.

The only instance on record when a postoffice has been named after a patent medicine, was last year, when in Wetzel county, W. Va., a new postoffice was established and named Kodol, after the famous Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, manufactured by E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago. It had given such satisfactory results that the name was unanimously selected by the people for the new office and adopted by the department at Washington, D. C.

"We have four children. With the first three I suffered almost unbearable pains from 12 to 14 hours, and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform. I used three bottles of Mother's Friend before our last child came, which is a strong, fat and healthy boy, doing my housework up to within two hours of birth, and suffered but a few hard pains. This liniment is the greatest remedy ever made."

Mother's Friend

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

NEW UNIFORM FOR TOMMY.

British Soldiers Will Soon Be Provided with Fawn-Colored Serge Suits.

It is probable that in a very brief period there will be considerable changes made in the material used for clothing the army on home as well as on foreign service, says the London Telegraph. The committee dealing with the subject, which has been in session for about a couple of years, has at length been able to come to a final decision. Probably the events in South Africa have helped the members to make up their minds. At all events they have chosen an excellent woolen serge-like material in which for the future practically the whole work of the troops will be performed. It is not khaki-colored, though that well-known and serviceable hue is somewhat closely approached. Trouser will not be made from exactly the same material as the jacket, but of one somewhat rougher and thicker in texture. The new material is of a yellowish-fawn color and is of excellent quality. It was selected from a great number of samples submitted to the committee and has been approved by the war office. Two other materials of the same tint, but of rather stronger texture, have been selected for the mounted branches, and a stout Bedford cord of the same color will be used for riding breeches. No regulation dealing with the new clothing has yet been issued, but one may be expected shortly, and from thenceforward uniforms made of the new cloth will supersede the serges and dark cloth trousers now worn for drill and field work, both at home and abroad. The same pattern of jacket will be used for all branches of the service, but each unit will wear a distinguishing badge on the cap and shoulder strap.

It is not, however, intended that the new clothing shall entirely supersede the old style of dress. The tunic is to be worn for full dress, so that on full-dress parades the familiar blue and scarlet and black will still greet the eye. Of course, it will be a considerable time yet before the uniform will be ready, but it is probable that the spring issue of clothing to the troops will include the new suit. It will be more handsome than khaki, while it will be far more comfortable and serviceable, and so far as experiments go to show it will possess equal invisibility. It is to be hoped that a suitable headdress may soon be devised for the army. The helmets worn by the regular troops in South Africa are excellent and greatly superior to the much-vaunted "smasher" felt hat, but they are hardly suitable for home wear. A peaked cap of the new cloth, picked out with scarlet lines and made somewhat approaching the Russian pattern, would look very smart and be suitable for general wear. At all events the ridiculous forage and field service caps should be relegated to the museums, along with the blue and scarlet serges now about to be superseded by the new uniform.

All Were Safe.

An earthquake, lately, in Caracas, Venezuela, brought ruin and terror. The city was in a state of chaos for days. The keeper of the jail, which always has inmates confined there for political offenses, issued the following notice, which ought to have amused as well as reassured those who read it: "To the public: I have the satisfaction to inform the families of those who are detained here that this morning's earthquake has happily caused no accident within this establishment."

MEN BUYING THIMBLES NOW.

Testimony of the Salesgirl as to the State of the Bachelor in New York.

"One phase of the notions department business that would strike a casual observer as peculiar," said the girl behind the counter, according to the New York Sun, "is the number of men who buy thimbles. The first time I sold a thimble to a man I was almost convulsed with curiosity and he was in the same condition with bashfulness. He tried to make me think at first that he was buying it for his sister, but he worried so over the size that I suspected there was something back of his anxiety, and at last I said:

"Can't you give me some idea of the size of your sister's finger? Is it as large as mine, for example?" and I held up the middle finger of my right hand for inspection.

"Oh, yes," said he, "it is larger than that—much larger. It's almost as large as mine."

"And then I laughed and presently he laughed and told me all about it. The fact is," he said, "I have no sister. I'm roughing it in bachelor quarters here in New York, and I have to do so much mending and sewing on buttons and the like that I find a thimble is indispensable. I suppose my ability in that line is nothing to be ashamed of, but somehow I rather shrank from letting on that I was buying a thimble for myself. I thought it would make me seem effeminate."

"But that was two or three years ago," added the girl. "They are not so squeamish nowadays. They march right up and buy thimbles and thread and even darning cotton without a tremor, just as women buy their own rifles and rowboats and other sporting goods, all of which goes to prove that the sexes are reversing their old-fashioned occupations with a vengeance."

Most of the men who buy thimbles have the nicest tapering fingers imaginable. I suppose most of them work in offices or stores and don't do anything to spoil their hands. They are very particular about the fit of their thimbles. They always want them as tight as beeswax. A woman likes a thimble loose enough to permit of circulation, but the men say they can't do anything with the thimble slipping off all the time.

"Men buy good thimbles, too; much better than the average woman. It is no unusual thing for them to ask for a gold one. Then I have to send them to the jewelry department. This year I gave several young men nice thimbles for Christmas presents. They all said I couldn't have given them anything that would have been so useful and acceptable. It's a wonder to me why more girls don't give their men friends thimbles instead of fancy handkerchief cases and necklace boxes. I'm sure they would appreciate them more. By another year, I fancy, they will get onto the idea, for the social conditions in New York make thimbles and even complete sewing companions a necessary adjunct to every young man's bachelor outfit."

Spain's Great Palace.

The magnitude of the escurial, the great Spanish palace, may be inferred from the fact that it would take four days to go through all the rooms and apartments, the length of the way being reckoned at 23 Spanish leagues, which is about 120 English miles.

BETTER THAN A FOOL.

A Drunken Man Delivers This Opinion of Himself.

Middletown, N. Y., May 13.—A drunken man saved Conductor Murray's train on the Ontario and Western while running south at about dusk on Sunday night from almost certain destruction. Engineer Val Powell was at the throttle when at a point called Pork Eddy he saw a man gesticulating wildly and staggering up the middle of the track toward the engine. He stepped aside just in time to escape being struck, and as the engine passed the engineer heard him shout "Rocks" at the top of his voice. Powell put on the air brakes and the train was brought to a standstill within a few feet of the many tons of rocks that had slid on the track from the south side of the adjacent mountain. The mountain is on one side at this point and the river on the other. It is certain that if the train had collided with the several tons of obstruction the cars would have been piled up in the water several hundred feet below. When the train had come to a standstill the man who had stopped it came staggering up and his first remark was:

"A drunken man is better than a fool any time."

Mistress—I'd just like to know what was the meaning of all that loud and angry talking down stairs last night.

Domestic—That was just me and me husband, mum.

"Your husband?" You told me when you came that you were not married.
"I wasn't then, mum, but you complained about havin' so much love-makin' in th' kitchen, so I married one of 'em."

The Initial J.

New York Press.

Has it occurred to you that the initial letter J played a not inconspicuous part in the recent game of pitch and toss in Wall Street? In former times of storm and stress we had J. Gould, and J. Fisk. Now we have J. Pierpont Morgan, J. R. Keene, J. J. Hill, J. Stillman, J. Schiff, J. H. Moore, J. W. Gates, J. Loeb, and George J. Gould. Put a J in your name if you would be a power in the street.

Many of our exchanges are constantly telling their readers "How to Help the Town." Some people could help their town best by moving out of it.—
